

METADATA RECORD

1. TITLE: Oncologic: An Expert System for Predicting Carcinogenic Potential of Chemicals for OPPT

2. IDENTIFICATION (SOLICITATION) NUMBER: PR-HQ-02-11776

3. ABSTRACT: The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), Office of Pollution Prevention and Toxics (OPPT), has a requirement for the purchase of all rights and trademarks to the Oncologic software owned by LogiChem, Inc.

4. PURPOSE: The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Office of Pollution Prevention Toxic (OPPT), Risk Assessment Division (RAD), intends to provide the OncoLogic software to the public under the "Sustainable Futures" initiative, which is a key Annual Performance Goal (APG) for OPPT under the Government Performance and Responsibilities Act (GPRA). Sustainable Futures is an initiative that delivers chemical risk screening tools to chemical companies who use these tools to help screen chemicals under consideration at the research and development (R&D) stage of chemical development. OncoLogic is the component of Sustainable Futures the Agency offers for the identification of human health effects. The period of performance will consist of a six-month base period beginning on or about November 12, 2002. This is a firm-fixed price requirement for the transfer of all rights and trademarks
